Coronavirus: Rambling is a great way to bring people together to enjoy the outdoors on foot; however with the spread of coronavirus posing a risk to public health, the Ramblers are following Government updates and the latest NHS advice closely. Anyone with a high temperature or new continuous cough should self-isolate for 7 days, even if their symptoms are mild. People over 70 are more likely to suffer serious symptoms than those who are younger. However outside activities pose a lower risk than indoor activities, because there are far fewer surfaces where the virus can live. We hope that Ramblers group walks will be able to continue as normal, however if it does become necessary to cancel walks, details will be given on our Area website site: www.eastyorkshireramblers.org.uk and we will also e-mail or phone our regular walkers to keep them informed of the situation.
